

Insurance

Travel insurance is insurance that is intended to cover trip cancellation or interruption, medical expenses, lost luggage, transportation issues or other losses incurred while traveling, either internationally or within one's own country.

Like most insurance, one rarely needs it. But we believe it is something you should be aware of and we recommend purchasing just in case something happens before or during your trip. In particular, you should check that your medical insurance is valid overseas and buy any necessary insurance to make sure you will have access to care during your trip. In case you want to know more about travel insurance, here is fairly comprehensive article on the subject.

Below are several reputable insurance companies that you might want to review. We do not personally recommend any one travel company and there are many other companies to choose from.
